

Dillon Roseen Intro for Tyler Brown

First Lieutenant Tyler Brown. He was an exceptional, compassionate, and selfless leader serving others before himself. He is a true hero who gave his life for the country he loved. In 26 years he touched more lives with his warmth and love for other people than most do in their entire life. My name is Dillon Roseen. I'm a fourth-year Economics and International Affairs student in the Ivan Allen College. Like First Lieutenant Brown and his father Carey Brown before me, I have had the honor of serving as Georgia Tech's undergraduate study body president. I am also a Georgia Tech Ambassador and a member of the Student Alumni Association. First Lieutenant Brown chose to go to Iraq in 2004 and serve with his platoon even after being selected to serve in the prestigious Old Guard. His decision to go to Iraq exemplified his life. He consistently put the wellbeing of others in front of his own interests. When I graduate, I hope to make a fraction of the impact First Lieutenant Brown made on other people's lives by pursuing my dreams of public service. First Lieutenant Tyler Brown... thank you for your sacrifice and thank you for inspiring extraordinary. It is my pleasure to present Carey Brown, Tyler's father, with this year's Outstanding Young Alumni Award on behalf of Tyler Brown.
